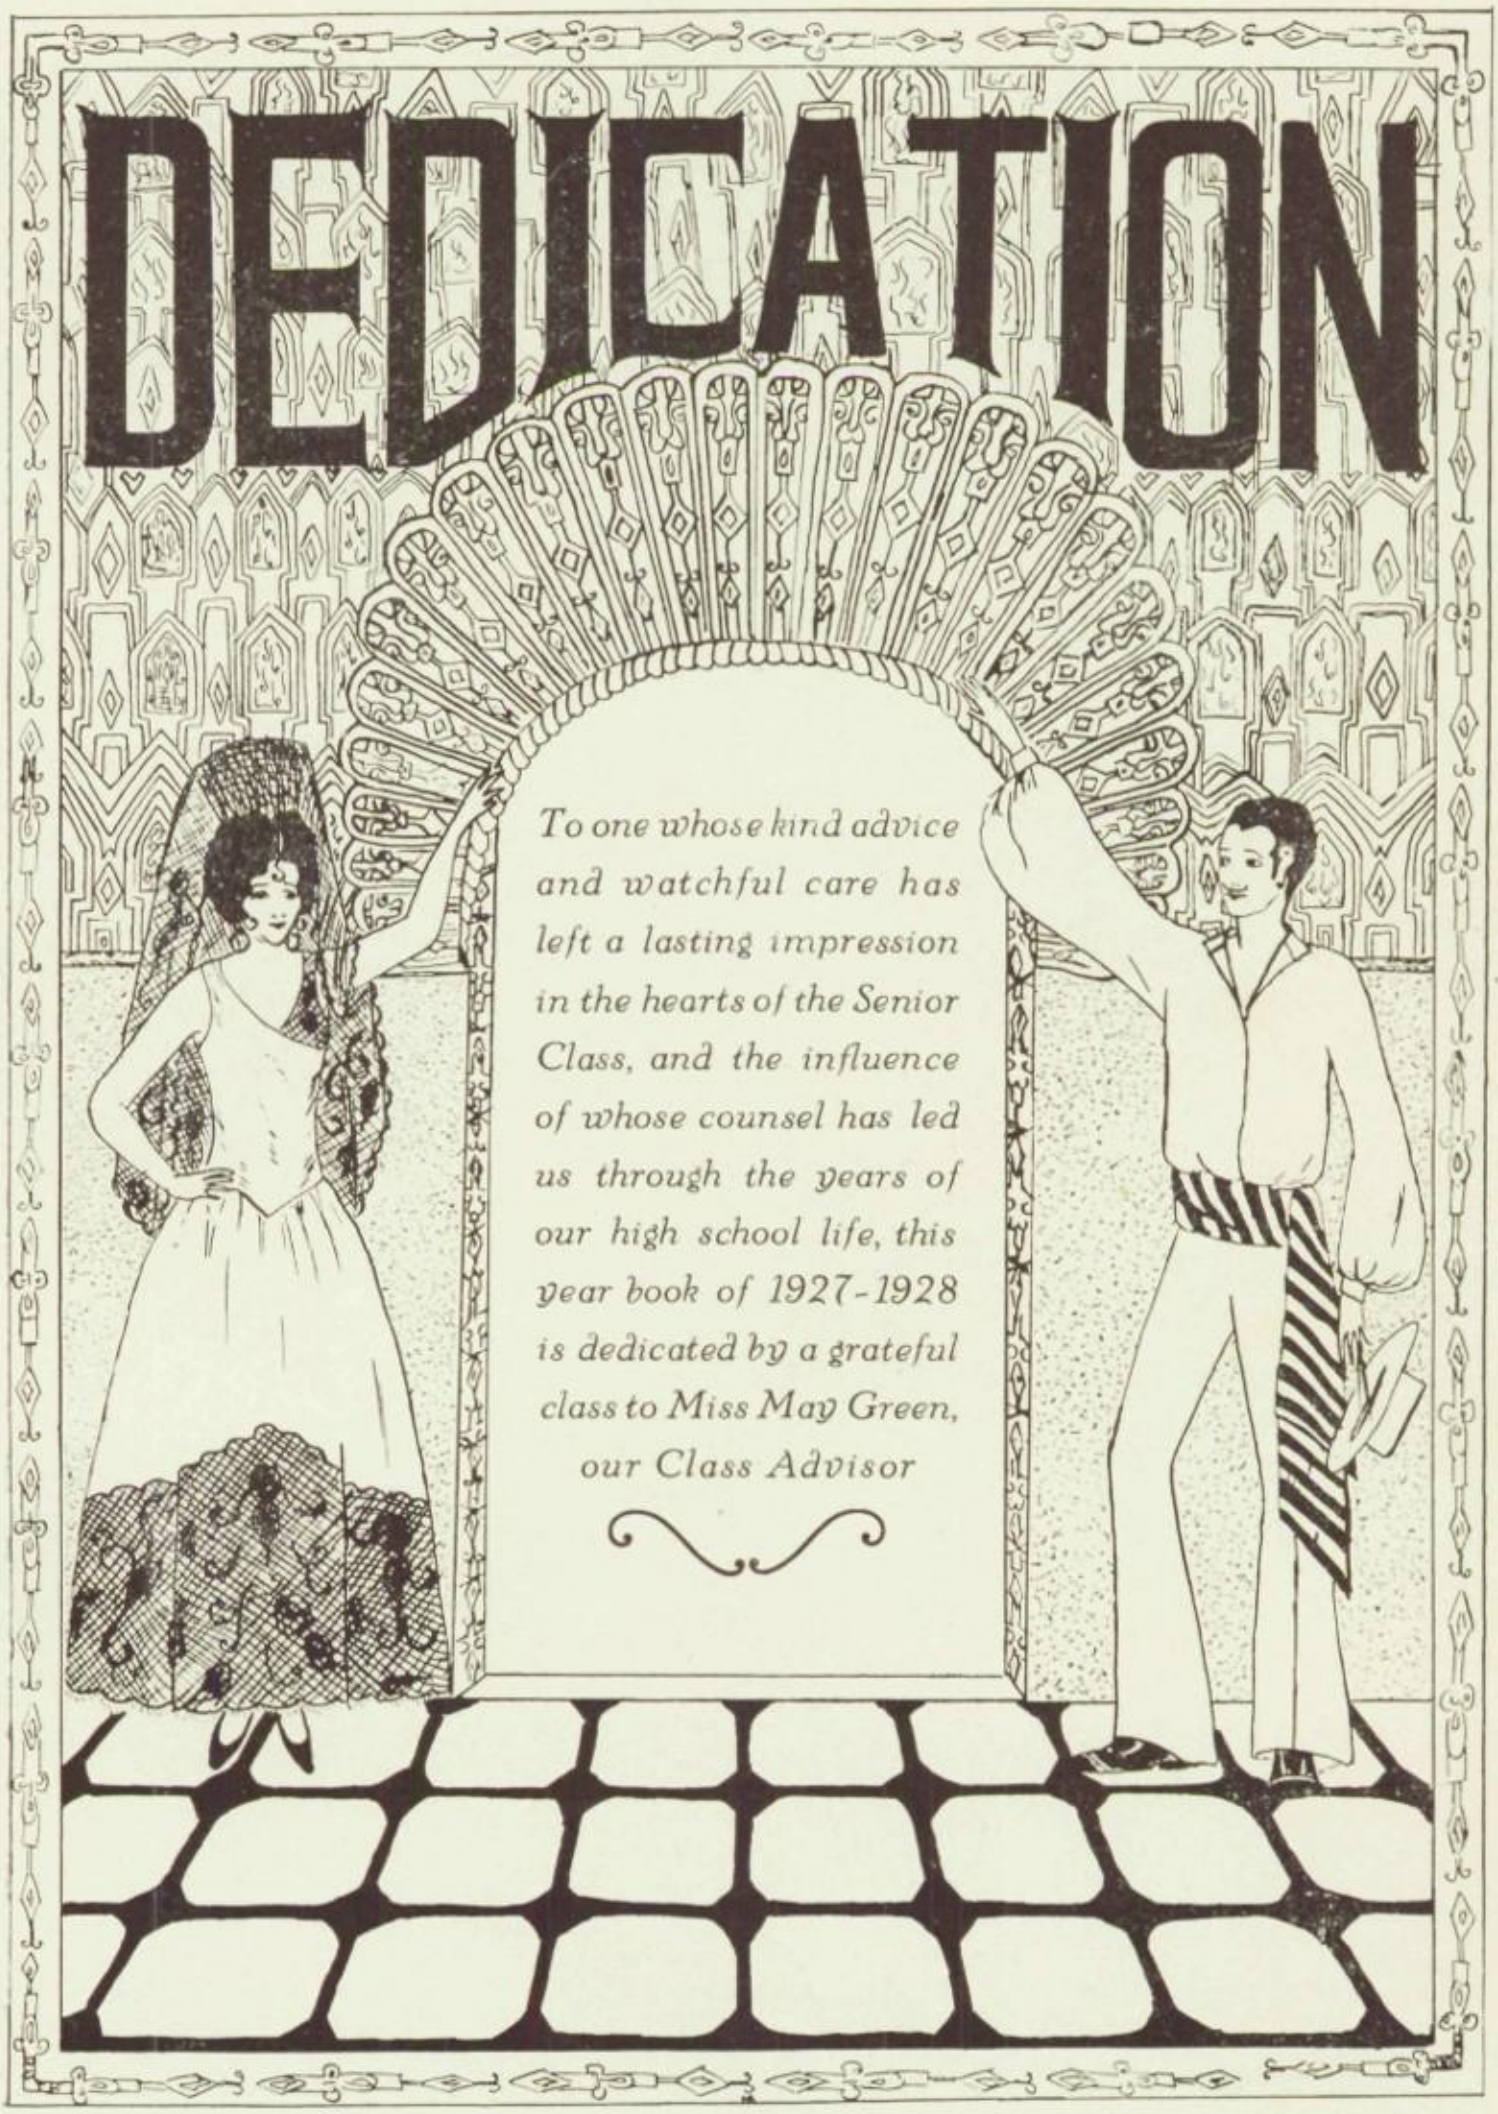
DEDICATION



To one whose kind advice and watchful care has left a lasting impression in the hearts of the Senior Class, and the influence of whose counsel has led us through the years of our high school life, this year book of 1927-1928 is dedicated by a grateful class to Miss May Green, our Class Advisor

Foreword

Our pathways will part, our lives may deviate from old associations, but our memories will always find their way back along one happy and joyous highway. Whatever we do, wherever we go, we may once again look through our Senior Sickle and go back to those happy occurrences — live again in the memories of our school days with an ache of remembrance in our heart, and finding, as the editors have intended, the tears, the smiles, the sorrows and the joys of the Class of Nineteen Twenty-eight.

SALUTATORY

CHARLES H. RUESINK

PARENTS, teachers and friends of the class of 1928, we bid you a most hearty welcome.

We, as a class are just reaching our port. It has not always been easy sailing. Many have been the times when for some of us the storms have seemed too dark to penetrate, but through many helps and encouragements from our parents and friends we are able to appear before you this evening as graduates.

During our twelve years in school we have been living part of our life, but like a ship at sea we were free to choose our course under the guidance of a helping hand. Now, since coming to port we shall have to choose our own path and push on by ourselves if we accomplish anything worth while.

Although our port may have been reached, our goal is yet far away. In a few days we shall go our various ways to take our several paths through life, but the memories of the pleasures and the hardships of our school days are too strong to be soon forgotten. As we have gone through school gathering bits of knowledge here and there we have been gaining experience and building our character, which, after all is the true test of success.

As we review our past we realize why we are now able to appear as graduates. It is because you, parents, have given us a place in this world and have impelled us to make the most of it; it is because you, teachers, have spent much time and labor imparting the many lessons which we must learn to make the most of our lives; and it is because you, friends, have stood back of us when a friend was most needed. We appreciate your presence here this evening for we realize that you are interested in us. We hope that your expectations for our accomplishments will be fulfilled with our achievements.

Again we bid you welcome.

CLASS HISTORY

THELMA M. ANGOVE

OUR Junior High School career came to a close in June, 1925, and we passed into the freshman class of Senior High School the following September. Full of ambition and high spirits, as only freshmen are, our class of two hundred and two members entered the next phase in our education under the able leadership of Tom Hoover as class president with Miss Green as adviser.

In the various school activities and organizations we acquitted ourselves most creditably, some of our members showing exceptional talent in debating and declamation.

The following year with Lynn Halstead as president our class continued its bright career, Tom Hoover winning the oratorical contest. The entire class was distinguished for its part in the different activities of the school. The "Senior Send-off" was one of unusual interest. It was held in the school where a banquet was given to a larger number than ever before. The seniors responded to our invitation one hundred per cent. Following the banquet we adjourned to the gymnasium which was beautifully decorated. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour bringing a happy, successful year to a close.

In this, our last year, Richard Camburn was elected president of the largest graduating class in the history of Adrian High School. Tom Hoover repeated his oratorical success, while John Armistead distinguished himself by being selected for the National Chorus at Chicago. As in the previous two years the class decided to undertake a trip to Washington. This required much hard work on the part of each one throughout the year, work which was more than fully repaid.

Among the interesting events of the year was the Operetta "Lelawala" given under the direction of Mr. Hubbard, our new supervisor, with several of our number taking leading parts: Virgil Gabba, John Armistead, Tom Hoover, Robert Naylor, Helen Warner, Elvin Fretwell, Robert Swift, George Wagner, Gaylord Aldrich and Lynn Halstead.

Having come to the close of our high school career not without some sense of regret, we recall many happy and enjoyable days in the past three years well expressed by the man who said,—

"All things must end,
The sweetest yet the fleetest."

We shall now pass on to a field more open to freedom but requiring much self-direction. It is the phase of life wherein some men and women reach out and grow, and where others find a small niche or rut to grovel in or fail miserably. The field is broad and may we all feel the challenge to explore it well, to continue our pursuit of knowledge, and to fulfill to some extent the hopes so generously placed with us.

CLASS PROPHECY

ELWOOD SCHOLL AND GRINDLE STANGE

SOME months ago my former classmate Elwood Scholl and I made an airplane flight around the world, during which time we visited most of the important nations. We were greatly astonished to find our former classmates scattered all over the world. We met so many of them and had such interesting experiences that we decided we would have to keep notes if we were to remember everything, so we took turns writing in our own diaries. Ever since our flight ended we have planned several times to get together and compare notes, but it has seemed impossible until tonight. Now we find ourselves at the twentieth anniversary of our graduation, and we are going to celebrate it by reading our diaries.

JUNE 1, 1947

Everything was ready for our flight in the two-motored plane of our own construction. Weather conditions were very favorable and our plane was in splendid condition. We made a perfect take-off and after a short time landed at Columbia Field in New York City. About six o'clock we proceeded to the "Fifth Avenue Ritz" where we were surprised to find Ruth Tyler and Julia Ruesink as joint owners. Wilbur Willnow was chief house-detective. Clare Burch, Richard Frye, William Gaddy and George Davis were the "bell hops." There we learned that Sam Warner's "Emert Frolics" were showing at the Capital Theatre that night. We went to the show and were delighted to find that Bessie Swartz, Madonna Tausend, Helen Smith, Ellen Rhoades, and Aileen Westgate were in the show. Leaving the theater we bought an "extra" and found therein that William Flynn was a candidate for President of the United States with Frances Ruesink as his most bitter opponent. We then returned to the hotel for the night.

JUNE 2

After breakfast we went to the flying field where our plane was all ready. We spanned the Atlantic without incident and landed in London, England. During a ride on a sight-seeing bus we encountered Sherman Blouch who was the section boss on the "Downhill Railroad." He told us that his assistants were Leland Jenkins, Birger Johnson, Willis Long, Cecil McKinney, Wendell Miller, Allen Moore and Harold Mitchell. He informed us that Illah Dillon, Edna Dorner, Esther Droegemueller, Mildred Drummond and Wima Dibbe were working in a nearby cheese factory. At a newstand we bought a book entitled "Seven Nights in a Flat" written by Marian Jamieson. This proved to be very good reading. That afternoon we heard John Jasper lecture on "Caterpillars and Their Diet." The rest of the day was spent without any interesting incidents.

JUNE 3.

After an early morning flight over the English Channel we landed at Le Bourget Field, Paris, where we were given a hearty welcome. Since we were in a great hurry, we took a taxi cab driven by Virgil Bayles. He drove us to Florence White's "Linger-Awhile Tea Room" (for bachelors only). She told us that George Dailey had departed for the Anarctic regions. In his company of explorers were James Boydsten, Nelson Ehinger, Elvin Fretwell, Bradford Elwood, Clarence Corley, and Weiden Cone. We also learned that John Vaughan and Lavern Pfister were prominent in Paris society as fashion critics. While we were taking a stroll down one of the main streets, we noticed a large electrical sign which read, "Reducing Parlors for Stout Women." We glanced through the window and noticed that the proprietor was Thelma King and busily working on some stout ladies were Jane Bean, Mary Jones and Virginia Malson. We went in and they gave us a warm welcome. On our way to the hotel we stopped in at "The Consolidated Artists Incorporated," and discovered that Robert Hostetler, Myron Hutchinson and Clifford Jackson were painting beautiful portraits of Kathryn Calhoun, Opal Carpenter, Margaret Chew, Ruby Colville, Gweneth Dalton and Harriet DeLano.

While at supper we noticed in the paper that Eleanor Fitzgerald was starring as the giggle girl in the great stage success "Laughter," so we decided to see the show. We were all ready for our sleep when we got back.

JUNE 4.

Our flight took us over the Alps which were very picturesque from the air. We knew that Frank Carrol (who is champion heavyweight of the world) had his training quarters somewhere in the Alps. We kept a close watch and, sure enough, there were large letters on the roof of a building reading "Frank Carrol's Training Camp." We finished our day's journey landing at Rome, Italy. We found Arthur Morgan a motorman on a street car and Lucia Wooster the conductor. They stopped and talked with us a few minutes during which Art told us that he had just taken Mr. and Mrs. McPhail (Mrs. McPhail was formerly Elsie Slayton) to the railroad station. They were enjoying a tour of Europe. Miss Wooster told us that Vivian Mack, Marjorie Smith, Donna Marrow and Rhilla Stockwell were working hard to make their "Soapless Laundry" a success. The rest of the day was spent in idleness.

JUNE 5.

That morning we left sunny Italy and flew to dusty, torrid Cairo over the blue Mediterranean. Here we met Grace Schulz, Egyptian Girl-Scout executive, who begged us to accompany her to the W. C. T. U. building where Shirley Wilson and Marguerite Peck were giving lectures on tobacco and alcohol. We told her that we were very sorry, but we were leaving for Bagdad, Persia, in the afternoon. We arrived in Bagdad about six o'clock and were enraptured to find our dear friend Lynn Putnam a competent pop-corn merchant. That night we went to see Richard Camburn's "Persian Burlesque." Bonnie Freudenstein, Sussane Gage, Mildred Galloway, Erma Hadden and Geraldine Groth were in the performance, while his two stars were Dorothy Hardy and Marguerite Hanlin.

JUNE 6.

Having left Bagdad at five o'clock we were forced down shortly after seven by engine trouble. We made our landing near a small but seemingly active town. A crowd gathered about the plane and as we began to repair the engine, a gentleman appeared in the crowd who on approaching us we found (to our utter amazement) to be Sylvester McNulty, Luther Burbank's successor, who told us that he had just perfected the squirtless grapefruit. He begged us to take him to Calcutta with us, and having plenty of room we consented. He told us that a ball game was to be played there that afternoon and that all Asia was going to witness it; he did not however tell us who were going to play. Having repaired the engine we continued our flight and arrived in Calcutta safely. Before going to the game, we stopped to see John Ruesink, president of the "Ruesink Never-Sink Life Saver Co." He told us that Cuyler VanAukenburg was foreman of the cork department and that Hazel Philo was testing the apparatus to prove that thin people can float. Arriving at the diamond, we rejoiced to find that George Evilsiser was captain of the "Sandlot Sluggers." Chiefly thru our cheering that afternoon, he succeeded in defeating the Cacutta Cougars 9 to 5. Later we went to see Edwin Clement and Glen Mull who were the officials of the "Prange Water Color Co." That night we heard Howard Higgins and Marjorie Francouer lecture on Woman's Rights.

JUNE 7.

We left the hotel very early so we could call on Seager Rollason who was a wealthy Turkish sultan. He introduced us to his wives, among whom were Lucile Miller, Jane Masten, Mildred Gillies, Marian Hunter and Violette Krell. At noon we continued on our way to Pekin, China. On one of Pekin's side streets we found Virl Shadbolt, Elsie Davis, Ethel Yeutter and Eloise Rowley working in a Chinese laundry. Down the street we went into a Chop Suey restaurant where we found Gertrude Badgley, Muriel Bly and Catherine Huebner waiting on table. As we could not read Chinese, we were lucky to have some good articles with us by Allice Baldwin and Jane Seager concerning historical dates. Thus we ended a perfect day.

JUNE 8.

We left Pekin at seven in the morning for Manila. Our flight was rather dangerous because of a heavy fog. But luckily we landed safely in Manila where we discovered the "Woman's Champion Hockey Team" captained by Margaret Koske. On the team were Ethelyn Morse, Leora Nye, Helen Pixley, Margaret Montgomery, Leitha Sisson, Marian Wellnitz and Olive Jessup. They were to play a game with the Manila champions. Leslie Salter was the referee. The game ended in an overwhelming victory for the United States team. Mr. Salter told us that Eugene Powell had a large shoe factory and he was making very good footwear (probably because of the trouble he had with his own feet in high school). Lavaughn Pfister was prospering by selling these shoes for him. After taking lunch at a cafe, we returned to the hotel near the landing field.

JUNE 9.

We landed at Sydney, Australia, a beautiful spot on the coast, in the early morning. We proceeded to look and inquire for our old schoolmates. We learned from the natives that their postmaster was a former American. We went to visit him and found out it was Robert Swift. (He liked the job because he always did enjoy reading notes). He told us that William Mull's "Mammoth Menagerie" was showing in town, combined with a side show of first degree. Among the performers were Gladys Ranger, snake charmer, George Wagner, contortionist an Elma Remmele, Beatrice Webster and Beatrice Reinhart, tight wire walkers. We were walking in the business district and met Robert Naylor, the man we had heard so much about. He was working in his laboratories trying to cross strawberries with milkweed so that he could have his strawberries with cream. In the afternoon, we went to witness a tennis match between the French Champion and Maurice Cooper the United States Champion. Cooper won by a walkaway. After supper we read from James Shierson's famous book, "Monkeys and Why Their Tails Curl." We read in an American newspaper that Helen Meyer, Margaret Hill and Virginia Hodgkinson had left Paramount and were doing some work for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Producing Co. That night we enjoyed a good sleep.

JUNE 10.

We left Sydney at five o'clock and at eleven we landed in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. A very beautiful city and exceedingly so from the sky. The first Americans we met were a group of missionaries including Doris Parlette, Leona Powell, Jane Ruesink, Wilma Shober, Robert Stadler, and Marshall Stevenson. Their energetic leader was Gaylord Aldrich who said that they had been doing extensive work in the lower part of South America and while there they had met Clarence Holloway who was a famous forest ranger. He told us of another old schoolmate and where he worked but we would not believe it until we saw it with our own eyes, so we went to the "South American Glass Co." and there, sure enough, was Alfred Merrill, the bead glass blower. (We were glad to find he was using his wind to good advantage). He told us that Ralph Bachman had been appointed a few days previous as Representative to South America from the United States and that around the corner from his house was Wilma Allabach's "Old Folks Home" with Marguerite Allshouse as matron. Because it was early afternoon, we thought we would continue our flight. On our way to the field we passed a large bean factory and on the window it said John Armistead, Kenneth Bowen, Gerald Downer and Melvin Brown, executives, but we were in too much of a hurry to stop. Our flight took us to Hollywood where we landed at the "Mooreland Airdome." We were invited to a party by a famous actor. We thought no one we knew would be there but to our astonishment we met Ethel Alban, Thelma Angove, Gladys Atkin, Irene Bliss, and Ruth Bradish who were "Mack Senett Bathing Beauties." Esther Detwiler was their director. We also met Mildred Hart, Pearl Shreffler, Ardyth Hill and Phyllis Inglehart who were with "United Artists." We were told that Charles Ruesink and his wife, formerly Isabelle Sherman, were living on a large fruit farm near San Diego.

JUNE 11.

We left Hollywood at noon and arrived in Chicago at two o'clock. There strolling, we met Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dempsy. (Dorthy Osterlin being the lucky girl). They were exceedingly glad to see us and invited us to dine with them in their own quaint suburban home. We accepted the invitation and spent a delightful evening with the happy couple. On the way back to the hotel we bought an evening paper and in big headlines we read the following, "Codfish Schooner Ran Down by Steamer." On reading farther we found that Lynn Halstead was captain of the boat and in the crew were Delmer Garrison, Carl Goff, Leslie Harris and Stanley Hoisington. Fortunately they were all rescued. In the Opera section we read that Dale Gardner, Virgil Gobba, Mr. Hoover and his wife (formerly Helen Warner) were rising to great heights of fame. In the sport section we found that Russell Tilton had just returned from the Olympics in Holland with the honor of "Checker Champion" of the world.

JUNE 12.

We hopped off on the last lap of our trip at sunrise and at seven o'clock after slow flying, we found ourselves back at our airdome in dear old Adrian. We were given a joyous welcome by our home town and we were very happy to know that we had re-established around the whole world this belt of friendship and goodwill of the old class of 1928.

CLASS ORATION

"OUR POLITICAL STRIKE"

Citizens:

As we glance about us, we observe the things that manifest our national power. The world bows to our industrial command and economic superiority and everywhere America leads in the artistic, the creative, the execution of the impossible. Yet this apparent prosperity is only superficial, for underlying this seeming supremacy is an indifference toward American ideals so far-reaching that it threatens to destroy our very nation. The vast majority of citizens today are content to bask in the affluence of our accomplishments and give no thought to their individual responsibilities as American citizens.

What have been the circumstances and achievements responsible for this progress in our civilization and for our international success? Our history first shows us the early settler with his determination for success, such a determination cleared the wilderness, planted wheat where forests grew, and made civilization and education possible for you and me. We see him win his fights against the beasts, the forests, and the great cold winters. We see him creating tools, developing the miracle of language, learning the laws of nature and mastering her forces, founding a government and rising to noble thoughts of religion and morality.

We behold our country, her frail beginning in those far distant days, her resolute attitude that helped break the unjust chains of England and later freed the Negro of the South. We see the United States slowly climb to reach the height of her ambition which rests on a foundation of all the virtues that are the finest on which a nation could place her hope for success. Our primal position has been built by a form of government in which all have shared, by an honest feeling and equal responsibility that has made citizen co-operation possible, by national love that has set a tradition of brotherhood and unity and by a love of freedom that has commanded a ready response in every emergency where the common life of all was threatened.

That has been our past, glorious in its accomplishments, magnificent in its ideals. But the past is gone—the present lies about us and as we reflect upon life today we recognize that these national ideals and responsibilities have been forgotten. This has largely been due to our rapid growth. Necessity has required that our advancement be along the path of power and wealth but there has not been proportional growth in keen appreciation of the depth and the dignity of life. We have let our responsibilities of citizenship be imperceptibly obliterated through our preoccupation. We have been occupied in civilizing and capturing a continent. Our era of pioneering has been completed. Now it should be our duty, if America is to continue her superiority, to direct our attention toward the completion of national ideals.

Europe watches with wonder, with amazement; she cannot conceive our rapid progress. European nations have gone so far as to apply the word "rush" to the American attitude toward the situation. In nicknaming they have not misnamed. In the hurry of our prosperity we have been guilty of heedlessness. Our halfway and lukewarm attitude presents an ugly and menacing evil in our political life which affects our country nationally and internationally.

The real trouble is that there are two classes which influence politics in this country. One is composed of those who directly or indirectly profit from our political indifference; they are deeply interested in our government from a personal point of view, failing to realize that our democracy stands for humanity, for equal opportunity to all the sons of men. There are many injustices and customs among our governmental functions, practiced by selfish politicians. The only way of righting these wrongs lies in a change in the attitude of the majority of American citizens, the way we, as responsible citizens, meet the obligations of membership in this great commonwealth. The other class that affects our government is represented by those who do not know or care to know the facts. They stand idly by while their fellow citizens participate in the selection of our governmental policies and officials. The indifference of this class is the one thing lacking in our political success.

We are met with the argument of many people that our country is perfect. There are people who say that it is a poor policy to criticize our government when we are backed by such men as our congressmen and President Coolidge. There is, too, the voice of the people who see nothing wrong in America so long as they can make money from the country. This outlook is menacing and there is grave danger today. Our duty should be to look ahead for possibilities are visible that appear disastrous to those who consider the intellectual and moral progress of the nation as vital as its material progress.

There is one thing which should create in the minds of our citizens a determination and willingness to support in the selection and election of our governmental officials—the fact that less than half of our qualified voters participate at the polls. The fact that over half are not interested in the administering of our government certainly justifies an anxious feeling over the outlook. Figures show, that in the matter of voting efficiency, the United States is outclassed and does not begin to compare with other nations. The proportion of our voting population is very small when considered in contrast with other governments. England, Germany, France, Belgium and Switzerland have records that are far above our standard of voting. England at the election in 1920 had a voting average of eighty-two per cent and the percentage of most of the other countries was over seventy. Ours was only a little over fifty per cent. In 1924 the average was under fifty per cent. Furthermore, the attendance at the primaries is very small—rarely more than a tenth, and often less than a twentieth. These figures have not been exaggerated because there is no room for exaggeration. Our primary election has become a joke which merely chooses the candidates by a very small number of people. Thus our presidents and our congressmen are chosen to represent us. Thus our governors, our judges, and our mayors are nominated. Thus our country is controlled—not by the people but by the politicians.

Our governmental officials are not chosen by a majority but by a majority of a minority. The reasons for this indifference, this apathetic attitude of the American people toward politics are many. It can be attributed to the attractiveness of the movie, to sports, to the adequacy of the newspapers, to the absorption of the average person in business, and to our general national prosperity. It is enough to know that ours is no longer a government of the people. One conclusion possible from this fact that is certain—the evil resulting from politics today is equal to the indifference of the voting public.

When we analyze the vital nature of politics as it affects the citizen—when this is considered it shows that every individual is affected directly or indirectly and that from its influence there is no possible escape. Our indifference to national success as shown by comparison of other nations, clearly and distinctly reflects upon our intelligence as a leading nation. Our political machinery may continue to stagger through—positions in our government may continue to be filled by a vote of a personally benefited few but by allowing such an evil to exist we are shattering our fundamental ideals of government.

Our attitude and action toward this menacing evil are the two guards who stand at the threshold of our national success. Through them can pass the determiner of our fate. Through them can pass that which will mean a gradual deterioration of our political understanding as a nation,—or through them can enter that which will mean a higher and finer attainment, an improvement and prosperity in our national success that before has never been experienced. Let us realize our responsibility as guards of America's future greatness, remembering that our indifference toward our government is the enemy who will degrade the ideals for which our forefathers fought, shatter the principles for which they gave their lives and destroy the foundation on which rests our national success. Let us determine that it should be the aim of true patriotism, loyal responsibility to raise the life of the nation to the level of its privileges. Citizens, our inspiration should come from the past, our duty should exist in the present, and our hope should be in the future.

GIFTATORY

JOHN VAUGHAN

IT HAS been a pleasure of the teachers of Adrian High School to give gifts or tokens to the pupils, as marks of appreciation for their efforts. It is my privilege to conclude this task.

Owing to the great expense necessary to remember every member of the class, we have had to limit this Giftatory to a few well chosen gifts for a few members.

In order to insure quiet during this performance I have a train for the "little boy" of the class, Tom Hoover. This should keep him quiet and amused during the rest of the evening.

As our president, Richard Camburn, will soon be away from the admonitions of Miss Patch, this alarm clock should serve him well.

This box of "Prange" water colors should be acceptable to Edwin Clement.

I hope this cake of Palmolive soap will help Ralph Bachman to keep his "School Girl Complexion."

This Cod-Liver-Oil should go far in restoring Sherman Blouch's health.

Maurice Cooper can lend this hat to any magician without fear of the consequences.

Florence White can have her "Bus" all the time now.

The Ruesinks, Charles, Frances, John, Jane and Julia must have an honor of some sort for their efforts in the high school, therefore we present them collectively with this medal.

We take great pleasure in presenting this basket of apples of the well preserved "Baldwin" variety to Jane Seager.

This Hoover Sweeper which has such a wide reputation for service and trustworthiness we present to Helen Warner.

This silk hat should go well with the rest of Alfred Merrill's airs.

If this rabbit's foot works as it should, Robert Naylor will not need to cross his fingers before tests any more.

This little tailor made garment should be very pleasing to James Shierson.

Dorothy Osterlin can use these boxing gloves to meet Dempsey's advances.

With this package of Wrigley's Spearmint, Elinor FitzGerald should be able to get along for a few days without asking everyone she meets for gum.

This box of "Morse" chocolates should arouse sweet memories in the mind of Thelma King.

With the aid of these stilts Gladys Atkin may be able to look over a crowd sometimes.

This sack of oats should be acceptable to George Wagner's overworked pony which he used during his high school days.

I think these reducing tablets will help Elsie Slayton to lose some of her superfluous flesh.

We take great pleasure in presenting one of "Wards" fine cakes to Lucile Miller.

To Sylvester McNulty, who has always taken such a firm stand for law and order in high school, we present this billy.

We gladly give a complimentary ticket to Lynn Halstead so that he may see "Red Hair" the next time it comes to Adrian.

We present this book "Answers to Questions of Curious Children" to LaVern Pfister.

To Allice Baldwin we present this useful little volume entitled "Difficult Choices." May it help her to know which one to choose.

To Virgil Gobba we present this miniature Bass Drum.

We hope this jar of "Stay-Comb" will help Melvin Brown to keep his hair down neatly.

We present this pair of old shoes to the president of the Junior Class in order that he may follow in our footsteps.

The last gift I have to bestow in behalf of the graduating class is its best wishes to the Juniors and Freshmen, that they may uphold the traditions of Adrian High School, and win new laurels for her, is the sincere hope of the class of 1928

CLASS POEM

ALICE BALDWIN

The world is now our master,
And life our theme to write.
We cannot follow others,
But ourselves, reach the light.

We've labored through our school days
For someone told us to,
Perhaps our path has wandered,
Hard tasks we've had to do.

Each danger that we've passed
And each deed done, our best,
Will make us what we shall be—
Aid us in fortune's quest.

And when we've reached our goal,
May we look back, and know
We've kept to those ideals
We formed so long ago.

VALEDICTORY

FRANCES RUESINK

TWELVE years ago when we entered school, life was carefree. Little it mattered to us what the future held for our life existed only in the joys of the immediate present. To us, then, the pupils in the seventh grade were infinitely wise and the seniors in high school were sages, old and learned. School years passed by quickly; almost before we realized that our primary school days were over, we were climbing the Junior High School steps. There we gained new acquaintances and new teachers guided us on in the pathway to knowledge.

Time glided by, not always smoothly, but at least not roughly until that September morning of 1925 found us entering Senior High School as freshmen. How well we remember the thrill it gave us to feel that we were rising in the world and were of some importance! However we still dreamed of the time when we would be seniors and might tread the halls with the firm feeling of ownership. The day seemed to us far distant, yet for nine months we have been living in the land of our dreams and it seems but as yesterday that we as freshmen were attending the graduation exercises of the class of 1926. It is incredible that we know as much as they did for to us they were the abode of wisdom and to be a senior was the highest station to be desired.

But now our dreamland is vanishing and we are realizing the magnitude of the unknown as compared with the known. Sir Isaac Newton at the age of eighty-five said, "I know not what I may appear to the world but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary while the great sea of truth lay all undiscovered before me." This thought comes forcibly to us who are being graduated. Our high school days have but begun our walk along this seashore and tonight we are starting each upon his own path along the unknown way. Some are looking forward to the college campus and the cap and gown that will take us into the next step of life to law, to medicine, to engineering or pedagogy and in all a high development of the natural talents that are ours. Others are choosing the business life and for some of them tonight marks the close of school days but we hope that the years of high school training have so developed each of us that in the future Adrian will be proud to claim us as her graduates of the class of 1928.

We are not being graduated tonight through our own efforts alone. The incentive given us by our fathers and mothers and the sacrifices on their part have meant much to the most of us. The personal interest taken in our work by the teachers even after we have gone on from their classes has made us desire to do better. They have not only taught us from the school books but they have imparted to us their philosophy of life and have done their best to mold us into true men and women. Had we not gained the friendship of those with whom we have been associated, school days would not have brought to us an appreciable knowledge of human nature.

Tonight we are saying good-bye to our high school life, good-bye to friends, good-bye to teachers but we shall frequently meet again. The influence of these associations has been so woven into our lives that as we progress in the world, we shall always feel their presence, brightening our lives and urging us to put forth the best that is in us.

Adrian High School, the class of 1928 bids you farewell.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

LUCILE HYPES

SEPTEMBER thirteenth, nineteen hundred twenty-six, a throng of freshmen, terrified and terrifying, entered the halls of Senior High School. At their coming, the teachers trembled because of reports transmitted from Junior High School. We, however, wisely chose Byron Vedder for class president, and Mrs. Cairns for class adviser. As if to atone for previous misdemeanors, we added several new names to the Roll of Fame. In athletics are James Morse, Wendell Patchett, Norman Brock and Ray Wetherbee, our class president; in public speaking, Byron Vedder, Christ Christoudoulou, Richard Egan, and Ferdinand Anderson; and in music, Margaret Church, Dale Fish, and Warren Babcock. So, in spite of reports to our detriment, the class of twenty-nine is not without honor in Adrian High School.

The climax of our school days will soon be realized. We shall soon become Seniors and shall finally graduate, leaving behind us our school-mates and teachers, some of whom we may be destined never to see again. So here on this printed page, we would welcome the freshmen-to-be, and bid the Seniors godspeed, as we turn to the task that awaits us, that of making our school a bit better and more beautiful because we have been in it.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

RACHEL BEAL

WE, the class of nineteen thirty, entered Senior High School last September with a strong determination to do our best. In Junior High we attained a high standard in scholarship and it has been our aim to keep this record. We showed our versatility when we chose our studies for the year. Some of our members turned to Music, some to Public Speaking and still others to Athletics. Doris Benjamin distinguished herself in music as she was the only Freshman to be a principal in the Senior High School Operetta. Eleanor Santose was chosen to represent Adrian in the sub-district declamatory contest at Blissfield, where she placed third. Many of the boys entered the field of Athletics and received their triple "A's." Wayne Ward and Paul Sauter in Football, and Clarence Judson in Basketball, have the big "A" to their credit. Even some of our girls did the required work to gain the coveted letter.

The girls of our class took an active part in the Girl's Pep Society, which undertakes to help support the organizations of the school.

In January we organized our class and elected the following officers:

Edward Fisher	President
Rachel Beal	Vice-President
Henry Miller	Secretary
George Gearhart	Treasurer
Edward Mack	Marshal
Miss Norma Beuerle	Class Adviser

In reviewing our accomplishments for the year, we wish to put above all else the fact that we have made an effort to do our best, and we hope that we have won from our superiors a respect that will stay with us through our graduation, June 1930.

SENIOR PLAY CAST

SENIOR PLAY

THE annual Senior Play, "Seventeen," by Booth Tarkington, was given at the Armory, the evening of May 18.

It is the tragedy of William Sylvanus Baxter that he has ceased to be sixteen and is not yet eighteen. Seventeen is not an age, it is a disease. In his heart, William knows all the tortures and delights of love. But he is still sent by his mother on errands of the most humiliating sort and depends on his father for every nickel, the use of which he must justify before he gets it.

"Silly" Bill fell in love with Lola, the "Baby-Talk Lady," a vapid flirt. To woo her in a manner worthy of himself (and of her) he steals his father's evening clothes. When his wooings become a nuisance to the neighborhood, his mother steals them back, and has them let out to fit the middle-aged form of her husband, thereby keeping William at home. But when it comes to the "Baby-Talk Lady's" good-bye dance, not to be present was unendurable. Now William again gets the dress suit, and how he wears it at the party, (and Genesis discloses the fact that the proud garment is in reality his father's) makes up the play.

The cast of characters consisted of:

Mrs. Baxter	Grace Shultz
Mr. Baxter	John Armistead
William Sylvanus Baxter	William Flynn
Johnnie Watson	Richard Camburn
Jane Baxter	Edna Dorner
May Parcher	Margaret Chew
Lola Pratt	Shirley Wilson
Genesis	George Davis
Joe Bullitt	Robert Swift
Mr. Parcher	Eugene Powell
George Crooper	Alfred Merrill
Ethel Boke	Leona Powell
Wallie Banks	Howard Higgins
Mary Brooks	Marjorie Francoeur

The play was directed and the cast drilled by Miss Eggstaff, and we extend to her our appreciation for its success.

BACCALAUREATE

Baccalaureate Services, the first event of Commencement Week, were attended by the Senior Class the evening of June 10, at the Armory. The Reverend Albert Kauffman delivered an inspiring address to the members of the graduating class of 1928 and their friends.

SENIOR SEND-OFF

The class of 1929 entertained the Seniors at the annual Send-Off on the evening of June 12. The banquet was held at the Masonic Temple and an unusually pleasing program was enjoyed by the guests. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

CLASS-DAY

The annual Class-Day exercises were held at the Armory the evening of June 13. A pleasing program was given by the graduates during which the Senior Gavel was presented to the President of the class of 1929.

COMMENCEMENT

Commencement exercises were held the evening of June 14, at the Armory. Doctor James B. Edmundson, of the University of Michigan, delivered an unusually fine address. The diplomas were presented to the class by Superintendent C. H. Griffey.

WASHINGTON

Members of the Senior Class, numbering about 120, left for Washington, May 28. The class was especially fortunate this year as the trip was planned so that Memorial day could be spent in Washington. After four days of sightseeing the class returned, feeling that the trip had been worth while.

LYNN HALSTEAD

FOOTBALL practice started one week prior to the opening of school with approximately forty candidates aspiring for places on the squad. With a well-balanced schedule of nine games, the team, led by Captain Warner, won four, tied one, lost four and outscored their opponents by fifty-three points.

With two weeks spent in conditioning and on fundamentals, the season was formally opened when Clinton was entertained here. As hosts, the home team handled themselves capably and although a few breaks in etiquette were made, their initial debut into the football season was a marked success. Adrian 45, Clinton 0.

Blissfield, an old rival, came here September 30. Although they were county champions in 1927 and again this year, they were forced to acknowledge the superiority of the Blue and White. Adrian 20, Blissfield 6.

On October 8th with visions of a victory over an old enemy, namely Ann Arbor, the team went to that city. Among these visions of victory, it is quite evident that there were others, which pictured them as playing the University. In the first half, Ann Arbor scored four touchdowns and did not allow Adrian to score at all. In the second half, with any delusions gone which they might have had, the team came back and played a sterling brand of ball. Ann Arbor was outplayed and held scoreless, while Adrian made one touchdown. Adrian 6, Ann Arbor 27.

Besides defeating Adrian, Ann Arbor seemed to have given us bad luck, for in the next two encounters, the team also met defeat. Wyandotte won 18-0 and Royal Oak conquered by a margin one point larger. Royal Oak 19, Adrian 0.

On October 28th the team with a rejuvenated spirit traveled to Ypsilanti and reentered the winners' column by trouncing Ypsilanti 19-6.

The next game was at Hillsdale with whom Adrian had not played the last few years. With a minute to play and Adrian leading 6-0, fate intervened and allowed Hillsdale to tie the score at six all, when an Adrian punt was blocked.

Morenci came to Adrian November 11 and as the score shows, this was little more than a practice session, although the Seneca team never gave up. Adrian 48, Morenci 0.

With Morenci disposed of, preparation immediately began for the big event of the season, the annual clash with Monroe. Considerable interest and excitement was shown by the students and football enthusiasts of both Monroe and Lenawee counties, with a large delegation going to Monroe from this city.

The game took the aspect of one of the "Big Ten" games. Monroe was represented by a band and our own school band also took part. The sidelines and bleachers were filled, the cheering was organized and the team rivalry was keen.

The contest itself brought forth no spectacular playing but developed into a game in which both teams showed that spirit of determination, which is characteristic of the bulldog. Taking the offense in the first minutes of play, Adrian worked the ball well down the field but lost it on downs. From then on the ball seesawed from one end of the field to the other, with Adrian taking the defensive most of the time. Monroe scored a field goal in the second quarter and a touchdown in the third quarter, giving the Red and White a 9 to 0 victory.

As a conclusion to the season Coach Miller arranged a series of inter-class football games, in which the Juniors carried off the honors.

SECOND TEAM

BASKETBALL

LYNN HALSTEAD

COACH MILLER issued his call for basketball men earlier than usual this year, to which thirty men responded including six letter men, which served as a nucleus for the team of 1927-28. From these men a smooth working machine with a powerful offensive was developed and completed a most successful season. The team was led by Captain Clement and the boys won nine of their thirteen games accumulating a total of 475 points to their opponents' 340.

The schedule called for two games before the Christmas holidays, namely with Lambertville and Dundee, which were won by overwhelming scores, Lambertville going down to defeat 67-14 and Dundee 47-11.

On December 23, the team met its first real test of the season when they journeyed to Toledo to play Scott High. Adrian's short passing attack did not function so well on the large floor and after a hard fought game, the laurels were conceded to Scott. Adrian 35—Scott High 42.

The Hillsdale College Freshmen were the team's next opponents and they furnished real opposition with a margin of only three points representing the difference in play. Adrian 31—Hillsdale 28.

January 1, Ann Arbor's crack team came here and proved that our small "gym" was no handicap for them. The game drew a capacity crowd. Although Adrian met defeat, it was a most interesting and well-played game.

Seeking revenge, the team found it in Ypsilanti where the issue was decided in Adrian's favor by a free throw, after the score had been tied at 22 all. Adrian 23—Ypsilanti 22.

The team was now rounding into form and when Grosse Point came here Adrian soundly trounced her 49-28.

Fordson was next in line and although playing on their own floor they fell 38-24.

On February 3, Morenci was entertained here, and Adrian proceeded to increase its number of victories over that school by winning 47-18 in a slow and uninteresting game.

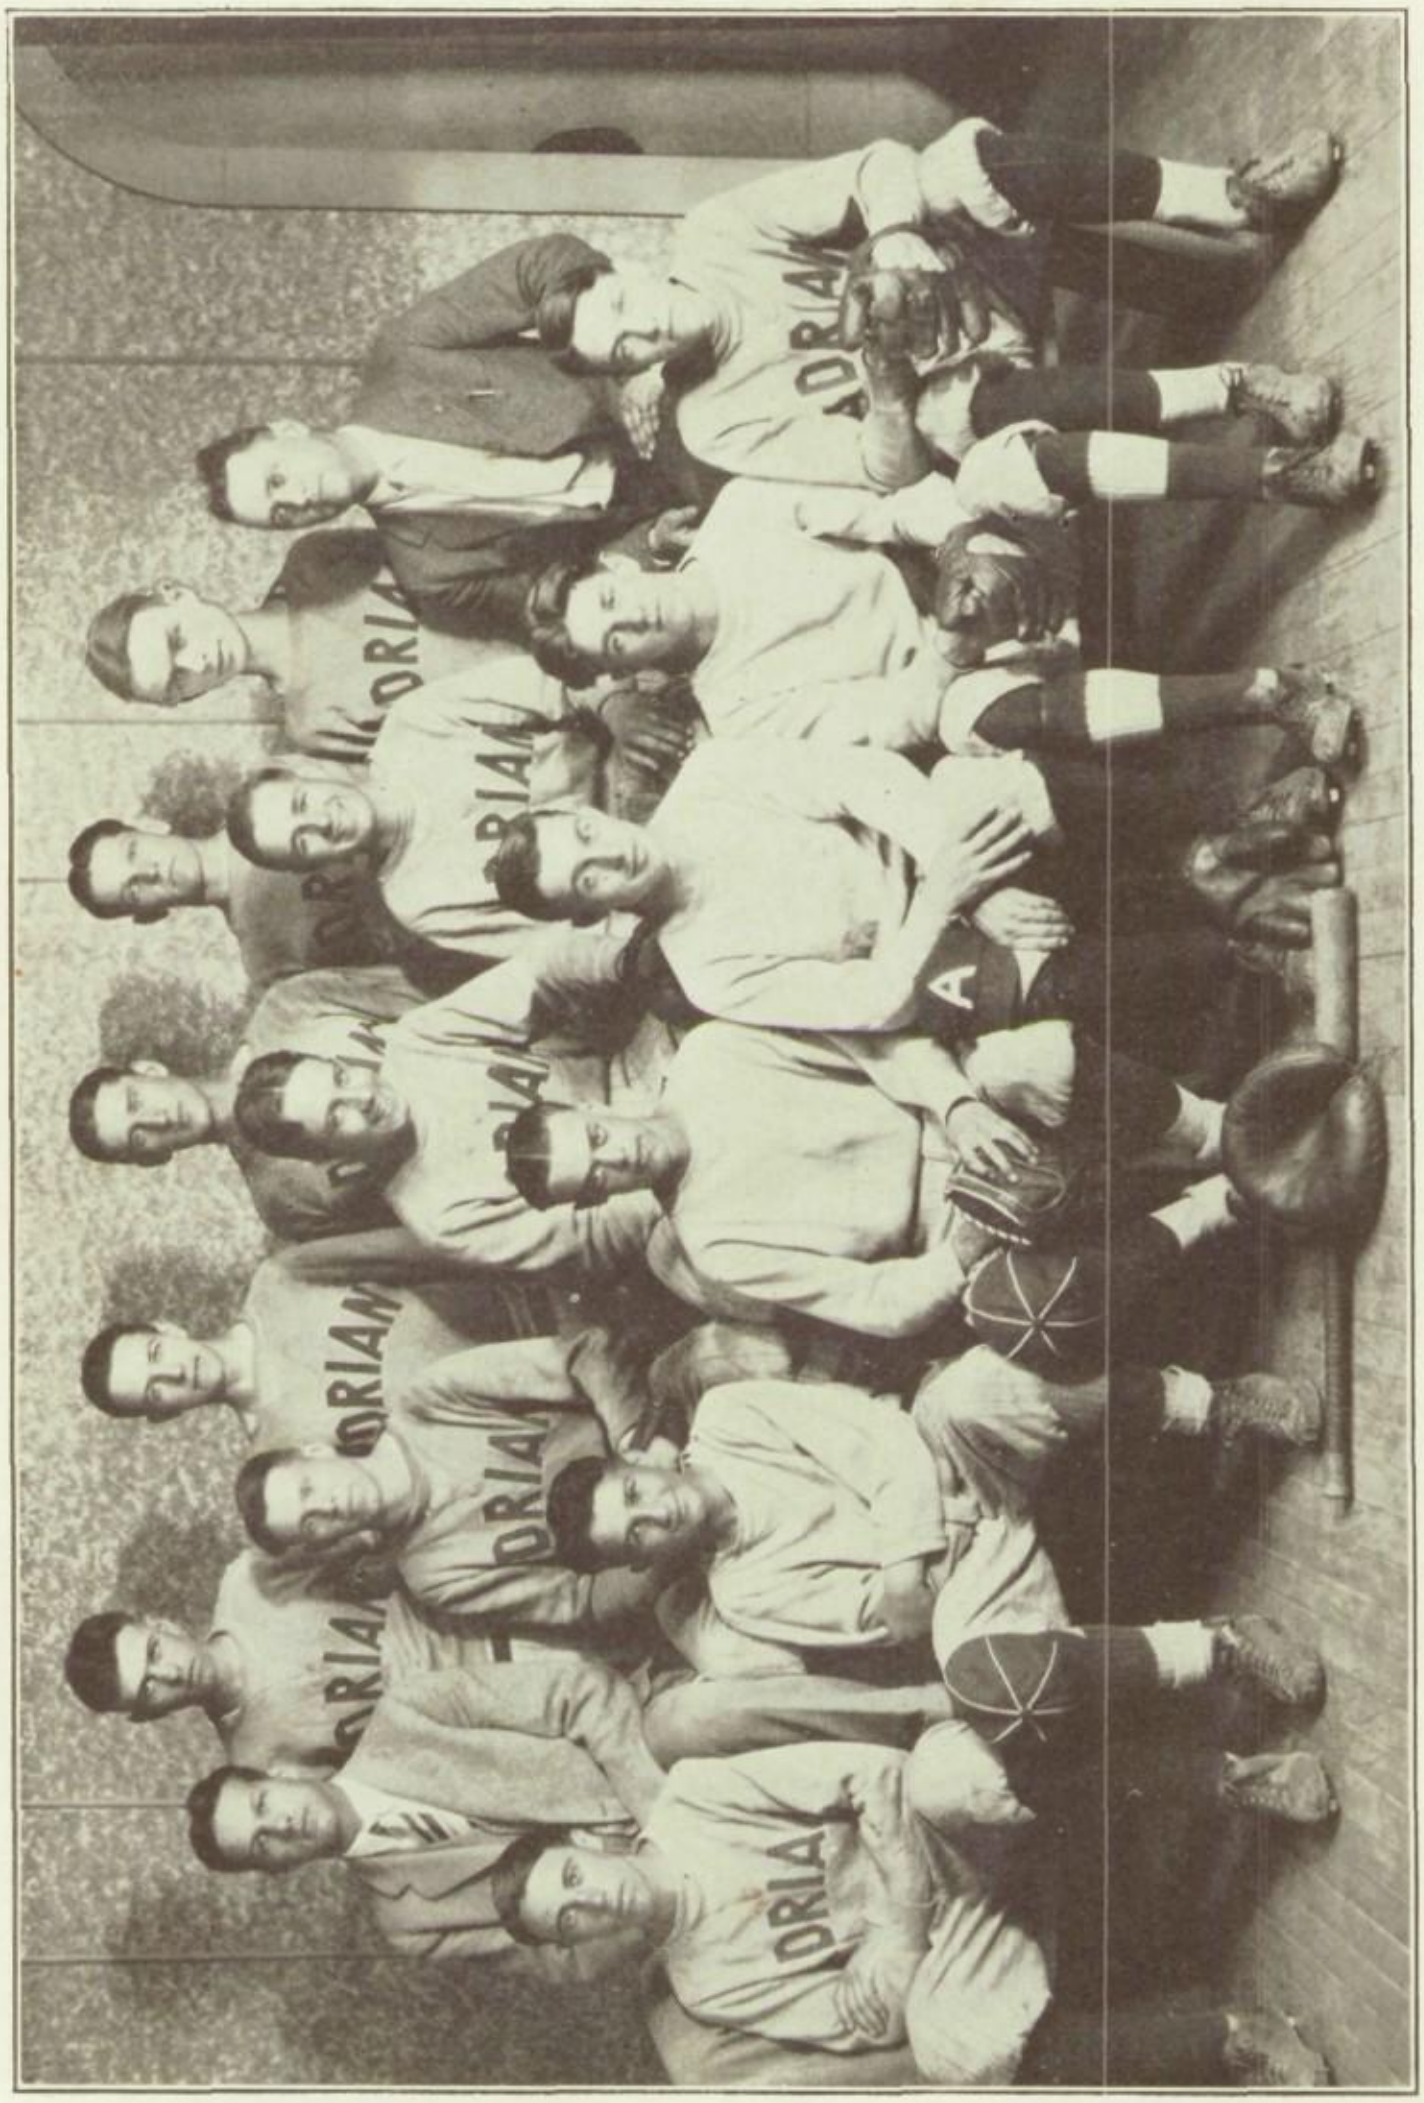
Owing to a break in the schedule two games were scheduled with local teams. On February 15, the St. John's church, leading team in the Sunday School League, was beaten 44-28. On February 21, the Alumni furnished the opposition in a most unusual and exciting game. As the final whistle blew the score was knotted at 22 each and it was necessary to use two overtime periods to down the old graduates 28-24.

With only one game remaining before the tournament, the boys traveled to Pontiac where they met a better team and lost 33-38.

Adrian drew Jackson as its opponent in the tournament, but was not destined for state honors. Jackson was runnerup in the state and defeated Adrian 31-19.

The second team deserves much credit for the success of the first team this year. Games were scheduled with local and out-of-town teams and were played as preliminaries. The team showed to its best advantage at Toledo when they played the Scott High reserves. In the closing minutes of play Adrian was leading by a scant margin of one point. Taking the defensive side of play and exhibiting some unusually fine work at stalling, they held their lead until the final whistle.

As in football a series of inter-class games was played which ended in a three-way tie, each team winning and losing one game.



BASEBALL TEAM

BASEBALL

WEATHER conditions prevented the baseball squad from getting on the diamond until late this spring, and Coach Luse was compelled to have the squad practice in the gymnasium and on the Junior High playground. Up to the time of the first game, activities were confined to the limbering up of muscles and a small amount of fielding.

A schedule of ten games was arranged and at the time this article goes to press there are still five games to be played. The team thus far has won four games and lost one. They have garnered forty-six hits and accumulated thirty-one runs, while the opponents have made thirty-six hits and scored twenty-nine runs. The pitching of Wetherbee and Evilsiser has been impressive and the indications for a most successful season are very good.

The first tilt of the season was with Morenci, April 10. Considering the amount of practice the team had had, they did all that was to be expected of them. Although they hit nearly as well as Morenci, they could score but once. Morenci 9, Adrian 1.

The next game was at Ypsilanti and as other athletic contests with Ypsi have been, it was closely contested. The outcome was always in doubt except in the fourth inning when they pushed across the plate six runs. Ypsilanti 10, Adrian 11.

May 4, the team went to Fordson where Evilsiser for seven innings held the opposition to four hits, while his mates were driving out eight. Fordson 3, Adrian 5.

Playing in the county again, Adrian went to Tecumseh where they proceeded to scalp the Indians. Wetherbee pitched an excellent game and allowed only three hits, although both he and Evilsiser, who relieved him in the final stages of the game, showed symptoms of wildness. Tecumseh 3, Adrian 9.

Playing a return game with Morenci in their first time at home, Adrian avenged the previous defeat and increased their consecutive victories to four. Bright spots of the game were the hitting of Phipps, who is now leading hitter of the team, and a home-run by Patchett. Morenci 4, Adrian 5.

TRACK TEAM

TRACK

LYNN HALSTEAD

COACH MILLER, who introduced track to Adrian High last year after a lack of interest had caused it to be discontinued, again called for candidates this spring. About twenty men reported, among whom were several good prospects. Seven meets, including an inter-class meet, have been scheduled. Three of these have been completed, at the time this article goes to press.

Due to the interference of other schools' activities, Coach Miller has been handicapped in that some of the men have not been able to report regularly, but for the remaining meets he expects to have a complete squad and he hopes that a creditable showing will be made.

Although there are no outstanding stars, several men have shown good form, among whom are Meeker, Tilton, McPhail, Mull and Wetherbee.

The season began with the Inter-Class meet which was won by the Seniors.

April 19, a meet including Morenci, Tecumseh, Blissfield and Adrian, was held at the college track. Adrian did remarkably well and carried off the honors. Adrian 57, Morenci 34, Blissfield 20, Tecumseh 11.

The next week a triangular meet was held at Ypsilanti in which Adrian, Monroe and Birmingham competed. Adrian could make only 22 points to place third.

There are still four meets to be held and the squad should come through with an average season.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

The girls' athletics in Senior High School have been confined mainly to work in the physical training classes under the direction of Miss Margaret Howes. Twenty-eight girls worked for A's which are given on the point system. Two basketball teams were organized, captained by Helen Prange and Verga Damon, and they played close games throughout the season.

The girls of the Senior High School physical training classes gave a charming minuet in the Spring Pageant, held in the New City Park. All the girls in the physical training department of the city schools took part in the pageant. Vivian Million was chosen as May Queen of the pageant by the girls of the ninth grade.

SICKLE STAFF FOR 1929

At a meeting of the high school faculty, the members of the Sickle Staff for 1929 were chosen.

Byron Vedder was chosen editor-in-chief and Jack Millikin, business manager. Fred Hopper was selected as assistant business manager. The selections were made according to the academic record and general ability of the students.

These three students will appoint the rest of the staff.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

KENNETH WARNER

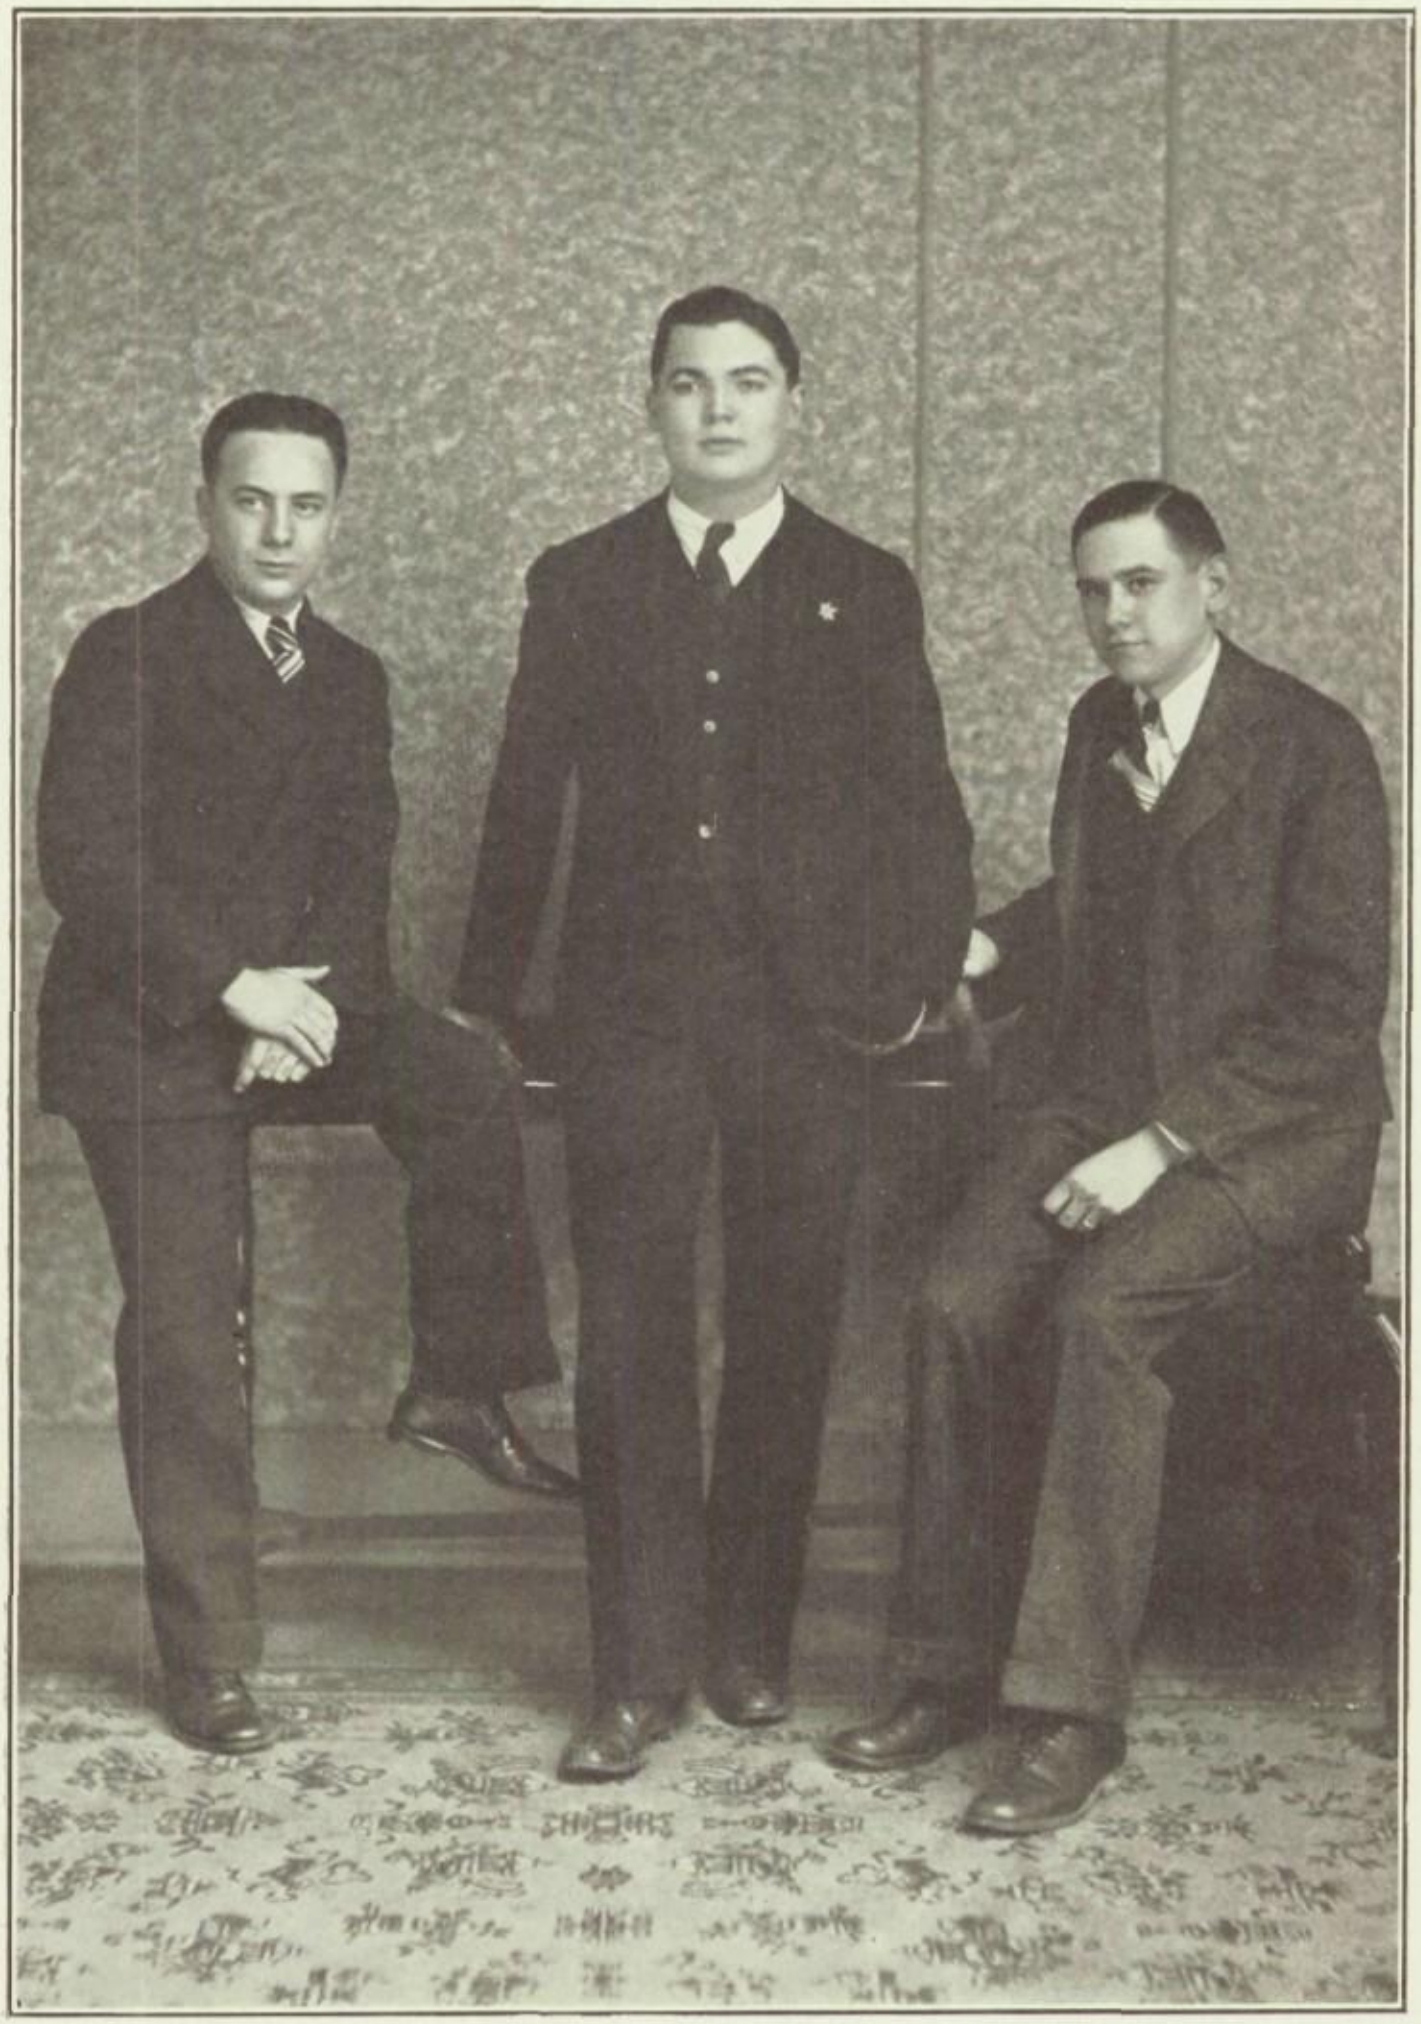
President	KENNETH WARNER
Vice-Presidents	LYNN HALSTEAD AND STEWART MCPHAIL
Secretary	EDWIN CLEMENT
Treasurer	R. O. LUSE
Marshal	SHERMAN BLOUCH
Football Manager	EDWIN CLEMENT
Basketball Manager	JOHN JASPER
Baseball Manager	JAMES MORSE
Track Manager	WILLIAM FLYNN

THIS past year has been one of the most successful years in the history of the Association. It was due to the good hard work of its officers and managers, and to the fine assistance offered by Coach Miller and R. O. Luse.

Every sport was well accepted by our athletes, and the numerous victories were due to the high standard of "playing the game hard."

The future for the Association is very bright as it has been admitted into the South Eastern Michigan League. This League is composed of schools that have produced very successful teams, and competition is very great so good crowds are assured for next year's games.

All scheduled contests were well attended, and the Association wishes to express its thanks to those who attended its games and who helped make its success possible.



DEBATING TEAM

ORATORICAL ASSOCIATION

BYRON VEDDER

President	BYRON VEDDER
Vice-President	EARL DEMPSEY
Secretary	MILDRED GILLIES
Marshal	WILLIAM FLYNN
Manager	GEORGE WAGNER

THE work of the Oratorical Association this year compares favorably with that of other years, both in scope and function. The more important meetings of the term were those at which a tag sale was conducted, the election of a business manager made, and the awarding of the letters accomplished.

The forensic work was carried on by the debaters, declaimers and orators. The debating team met with mediocre success during the season, but possibilities for the team of 1928-29 are exceptionally bright. Besides the regular schedule of debates with Monroe, Ypsilanti and Blissfield, the speakers met teams from Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti for practice encounters.

This year found Adrian also ranking high in the oratorical and declamatory field. Its oratorical representative, Tom Hoover, not only won first place in the sub-district contest, but also received recognition in the district while the declamatory entry, Eleanor Santose, placed high in sub-district competition.

The public speaking department has not produced as many plays as last year, due to the handicap that not only dramatic but forensic work faced because of a period in which the department was without an instructor.

The Association letters this year were distributed to the following students: Eleanor Santose, George Gearhart, Rachel Beal, Christ Christodoulou, Ferdinand Anderson, Richard Egan, Tom Hoover and Byron Vedder.

The Association wishes to thank its coaches, Miss Smith and Miss Eggstaff, and also Miss Green, who so ably took up the work during the weeks the teams were without a coach. Much credit is due to the entire student body, who manifested perhaps the most interest toward forensic work that has been displayed since the birth of the Association.

MUSIC ORGANIZATION

THE musical organization has again proved itself to be one of the most representative bodies of the school year. The credit of its success has been due to the splendid co-operation of Mr. Homer Hubbard.

This year a new feature has been added. The band furnished spirited music for the Monroe game and for two home games. The members practiced outside school hours this year, but it is to be a regular branch of the Music Course next year.

The Glee Clubs and Orchestra gave the annual Music Club program in January, and in March the annual Operetta was given. "Lelawala," or "The Maid of Niagara," was produced and it was proclaimed one of the best of the Operettas put on by the high school.

John Armistead was the delegate to the National Chorus and accompanied Mr. Hubbard to that event in Chicago in April.

The Orchestra occupied a most important position this year. A Sousaphone and French horn have been added to the equipment. The Orchestra played at the dedication of the Lincoln, McKinley, and Garfield schools. It also played at the Croswell theatre as a special attraction.

The State Music Contest is one of the feature events of the year. The Organization entered six events at the District Contest and placed in all six.

OPERETTA CAST

OPERETTA

MARCH 16 the Music Club presented as its annual production a dramatic operetta in three acts, "Lelawala," by George Murray Brown. The chorus, solo and orchestral numbers were worthy of much praise and the costumes were particularly attractive.

The Legend of Niagara, the "Thunder Waters" of the Indians, provides a background for the play. Long ago, during a famine, the Great Spirit called for the sacrifice of a virgin and Necia, the Chief's daughter, volunteered. On the appointed day, she drifted over Niagara Falls in a white, flower-decked canoe; the anger of the Great Spirit was appeased and the famine ended.

War is threatened by the Delawares on the Oniahgahrahs. The Great Spirit demands again the death of a virgin, and Lelawala, the daughter of Wokomis, volunteers, and is chosen to die, as did Necia.

On the evening before Lelawala is to die, her lover, Sowanas, an Algonquin, arrives. He is heartbroken to learn of her impending sacrifice and urges her to go with him, but she remains faithful to her tribe.

As Lelawala is about to enter her canoe, news arrives that the Wyandots have overcome the Delawares and killed their Chief. Marpeetopah, a Medicine-man, brings a new message from the Great Spirit sparing Lelawala to her father Wokomis. Wokomis gives his daughter in marriage to Sowanas and all ends happily.

THE CALENDAR

SEPTEMBER

Monday, September 12—Students came back to school to rest up after the strenuous vacation.

Tuesday, September 13—Concerning the weather on this day, Mr. Tripp remarked that, "The melofygistic temperature of the occidental horizon had become such as to colorocise the impurient indentation of the hemispheric analogy and the boris curbistis was becoming rapidly charged with infinitesimals."

Monday, September 19—First edition of failure slips were out. They were all the rage.

Wednesday, September 21—Senior class organized.

Thursday, September 22—School closed for the Lenawee County Fair.

Friday, September 23—All those who bet on Tunney celebrated at the Fair.

Sunday, September 25—Jane received first long distance call from "Eddie."

Tuesday, September 27—A great thesis concerning "The Rules and Regulations of this School, and the State Laws Dealing with Cigarette Smoking," was expounded by Principal Reed at Roll-call.

Wednesday, September 28—Hurrah! Free tickets to the Michigan-Ohio football game were given to the students.

Thursday, September 29—The Juniors elected their class officers.

Friday, September 30—The end of the month.

OCTOBER

Thursday, October 6—The Seniors were divided into groups for raising the Washington trip fund.

Wednesday, October 12—First bar of candy sold. We take I. O. U.'s.

Saturday, October 15—Who'da thunk it! The freshies took first prize in the sale of Athletic Association tags.

Tuesday, October 18—The first shipment of the winter's snow arrived. How thrilling is the touch of a snowball!

Thursday, October 20—School closed for the Teachers' Convention.

Monday, October 31—Hallowe'en. For "the goblins will get you if you don't watch out."

NOVEMBER

Clip: "Wheah you-all bin?"
E. Morse: "Lookin' foah work."
Clip: "Man! Man! Yoah cu'osity's gonna git you into trouble yit!"

WE DON'T GUESS

A Chinese newspaper contains this letter from an applicant for work:

"Sir,—I am Wang. . . . . I can drive a typewriter with good noise and my English is great. . . . . My last job has left itself from me, for the good reason that the large man has dead. It was on account of no fault of mine. So, honorable sirs, what about it? If I can be of big use to you, I will arrive on some date that you should guess."

LET'S END IT

Magistrate: "Have you a lawyer?"
Prisoner: "No, sir."
Magistrate: "Do you want a lawyer to defend you?"
Prisoner: "Not in particular, sir."
Magistrate: "Well, what do you propose to do about it?"
Prisoner: "Well, so far's I'm concerned, I'm willing to drop the whole business."

REDUCING EXERCISE

"Buy a car," the doctor advised Mr. Luse, "and get out more. You ought to take off pounds of flesh."

Speaking of the results obtained by this prescription, Mr. Luse says:

"I got a car and got out more. I got out six times between Lincoln avenue and Toledo street and took off flesh in four different places. Once I got out through the windshield. That seemed to take off the most flesh."

IT WAS COLD

It was so cold that the sunshine froze on the sidewalk and we had daylight all night.

Alice Baldwin: "I smell tobacco. Do you smoke tobacco?"
Art Kells: "Did you ever hear of anyone smoking anything but tobacco?"
Alice: "Well, I had an uncle once who smoked hams."

"Who surrendered to Washington?"
"Cornwallis."
"And Howe!"

Miss Hayes: "Are you laughing at me?"
Bill: "No, ma'am."
Miss Hayes: "Well, what else is there to laugh at?"

"EGGSACTLY!"

Customer: "What are eggs today?"
Funny Shopman: "Eggs, madam."
Customer: "All right, gimme a dozen; the last ones were nearly chickens."

T. Hoover: "I say, Sam, I saw something in the train this morning that would have tickled you immensely."
Sam: "What was it?"
Tom: "A piece of straw."

"Did you just get a haircut?"
"No, all of them."

Kenneth Bowen: "Can a person be punished for something he hasn't done?"
Miss Buck: "Of course not."
Kenneth: "Well, I haven't done any geometry yet?"

E. Alban: "Have you heard the new golf song?"
T. Angove: "Tee for two?"
E. A.: "No, 'Sweet Child, You're Driving Me Wild, That's Putting It Mild.'"

V. Bales: "What did your grandfather say when they amputated his leg?"
J. Bean: "He yelled, 'Hey, what's coming off here?'"

Flynn: "She reminds me of the sea."
Fretwell: "Howzat?"
Flynn: "She looks green, but sometimes she is awfully rough."

W. Allabach: "I'm going home."
M. Allshouse: "Why?"
W. A.: "I live there."

Tom Hoover: "I drew a picture in ten minutes and thought nothing of it."
Helen Warner: "I saw it and didn't think nothing of it, either."

NOT SERIOUS

"Don't you think she's rather two-faced?"
"Yes, but it washes off every night."

"Have you any thumb tacks?"
"No, but I have some finger-nails."

Caller: "What's your son Edward's average income?"
Edward's Mother: "About midnight."

Have you heard the latest Scotch song? "Let the Rest of the World Go 'Buy'."

Miss Eggstaff: "Surely you know Henry Wadsworth Longfellow."
S. Blouch: "Oh, yes, he's the guy who was so dumb that he thought 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' was a night club."

Dentist: "You yelled like a wild man. I thought you at least had a little nerve."
Bob Swift (nursing his jaw): "Well, I did. You'll find it in that tooth."

A. Moore: "I'm surprised at your tailor turning you out like that."
A Morgan: "It's not his fault. He can never get the right measurements—I'm so ticklish."

TO BE CONTINUED

Her: "I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I became engaged to Tom last night."
It: "Well, how about next week, then?"

ENDORSEMENT

"They laughed when I sat down at the piano."
"But why? Didn't they know how well you play?"
"Oh, yes, but there was a tack on the piano stool."

Miss Patch: "What excuse have you for being so late?"
John Jasper (breathlessly): "I ran so fast, teacher, that I-I-I didn't have time to think up one."

Geo. Davis: "My car was named after Napoleon."
Nelson Ehinger: "Not long after, I imagine."

QUALIFYING

"Sir, I have courted your daughter for six years."
"Well, what do you want?"
"To marry her of course."
"Good, I thought you wanted a pension or something."

"Do you think it healthy to keep your hogs in the house?" a social investigator asked.

"Waal, I dunno," was the reply. "But I been akeepin' my hawgs there for fourteen years and I ain't never lost one of 'em yet."

Salesman (at motor show): "This is the type of car that pays for itself, sir."
H. Higgins: "Well, as soon as it has done that you can have it delivered at my garage."

Teacher: "What does the prefix 'mag' mean?"
G. Davis: "Big."
Teacher: "Well, give me a word containing this stem and use it in a sentence."
George: "I like magpies."

Mrs. Cairns: "What is bacteria?"
Bob Swift: "The rear end of a cafeteria."

G. Badgley (consulting cook book): "O, my, that cake is burning and I can't take it out for five minutes yet."

Judge: "Have you anything to say, prisoner, before sentence is passed upon you?"
G. Aldrich: "No, except that it takes very little to please me."

She: "Meet me at the library tonight at seven o'clock."
It: "All right; what time will you be there?"

A co-ed may love a boy from the bottom of her heart, but there is always plenty of room at the top for at least one more.

GET BORN EARLY

"What do you believe is the reason for your long life, Uncle Aaron?" the reporter asked the colored centenarian.

"Becoz I was bawn a long time back, Ah guess," said Aaron reflectively.

A SPOTTER

Tom Hoover: "Where do you work, Jim?"
Jim Morse: "In a domino factory."
Tom Hoover: "What do you do?"
Jim Morse: "I put the spots on."
Tom Hoover: "Why aren't you working today?"
Jim Morse: "Well, you see, they are making blanks today."

DOG-GONE IT!

George Wagner: "I can't understand why my girl shook me."

Harold Mitchell: "What was that you wrote her the last time?"

George: "All that I said was, 'My dear Susie: The dog I promised you has just died. Hoping these few lines will find you the same. Your George.'"

QUICK, DIOGENES!

An honest speeder had just hit a dog and had returned to settle his damage if possible. He looked at the dog a moment and addressed the man with a gun.

"Looks as if I'd killed your dog."

"Certainly looks that way."

"Very valuable dog?"

"Not very."

"Will five dollars be enough?"

"Well—I guess so."

"Sorry to have broken up your hunt," said the motorist pleasantly as he handed the owner a crisp five-dollar bill.

"I wasn't going hunting—jest going out in the woods to shoot the dog."

PROTECTING HUBBY!

Downstairs a board creaked, a foot scraped over a chair, and there was the tinkle of silver! Mrs. Smith suddenly sat up in bed and pulled vigorously at her sleeping husband's arm.

"Whassa matt—," he began.

"Shh!" she whispered. "Burglar downstairs; take your gun and go down and get him, at once."

Mr. Smith trembled and the hair rose on his head, but he was a quick thinker.

"Sure," he said, "I'll go right down. It's probably the girl burglar who has been robbing houses around here—a sweet-looking little thing who always kisses her way out of trouble when she gets caught. I'll go right down!"

"John! Your place is with me! You stay RIGHT HERE!"

Butter and Eggs: "Am I the first man you ever loved?"

Former Prom. Trotter: "Yes, all the rest were college boys."

H. Higgins: "Pop, the thermometer's fallen."

Pop: "Very much?"

Howard (sheepishly): "Oh, about five feet."

G. Mull (to hunter): "What kind of luck did you have?"

Hunter: "Bald man's luck. I combed the woods without finding a single hare."

W. Miller: "How do you like my room, as a whole?"

Freshman: "As a hole it's fine, as a room—not so good."

Soph (earnestly): "Now, honestly, what would you do if you were in my shoes?"

Senior (disdainfully): "Get a shine."

THRIFT ARGUMENT

"George, isn't it rather extravagant to eat both butter and jam on your bread at the same time?"

George Dailey: "Oh, no, Mother. It's economy. You see the same piece of bread does for both."

G. Schultz (hopefully): "Don't you love this weather?"
J. Ruesink (brutally): "No! Come around in the spring."

"Heaven lies about us in our infancy."
"Yes, and the newspapers lie about us when we grow up."

Miss Buck (in algebra class): "What is the root of an equation?"
M. Brown: "The unknown."
Miss Buck: "And what is the unknown?"
M. Brown: "My algebra grade."

Miss Green (in history class): "What first made the Tudors come into prominence?"
William Mull: "Henry Ford."

F. Carroll: "But I have never seen some of those questions before."
Mr. Clark: "Well I wouldn't doubt that. I took them out of the book."

Ikey and Izzy were seperating, when Ikey said:
"Au revoir."
Vat's dat?" asked Izzy.
"Dat's good-bye in French."
"Vell," said Izzy, "Carbolic acid."
"Vat's dat?" Ikey asked.
"Dat's good-bye in any langvidge."

WHY TRAFFIC COPS ARE ALWAYS SWEET

A traffic policeman at a busy crossing saw an old lady beckon to him one afternoon. He held up a dozen motor cars, a dray and two cabs to get to her side.

"What it is, ma'am?" he said rather impatiently.

The old lady smiled and put her hand on his arm.

"Officer," she said in a soft voice, "I want to tell you that your number is the number of my favorite hymn."

EVIDENCE

Police Constable (taking down notes from musician who had been knocked down by a car): "Did you see the number of the car?"

Mr. Hubbard.: "No, but it had a horn that sounded "Doh" in the key of B sharp."

PRESENCE OF MIND

During the World War one of the great steamships that was used as a transport for soldiers was on her way across when a torpedo boat was sighted. In anticipation of the danger they were in, all on board were lined up on deck.

There was a deathly hush for an instant, when suddenly from down the line a Negro's voice rang out: "Is dar ennybody heah dat wants to buy a gold watch and chain?"

A pompous man missed his silk handkerchief and accused an Irishman of stealing it. After some confusion the man found the handkerchief in his pocket and apologized for having accused the Irishman.

"Never mind at all," said the latter. "Ye thought I was a thafe and I thought you was a gentleman, an' we were both mistaken."

NO GROPING UNDER THE BUREAU

"I've swallowed my collar-button," gasped the grocer.

"Well," responded his wife, "you know where it is, anyway!"

HE WAS

"You looked foolish the night you proposed to me," reminisced Mrs. Spatt.

"I could never deceive you, could I, darling?" her husband agreed.

ORDER

"Can't you wait on me?" asked the impatient customer, "I'm in a hurry."

"Sorry, madam," said the butcher, "but there are two or three ahead of you. You don't want your two pounds of liver out of order, do you?"

Mr. Clark reports a pair of rubbers and a pair of gloves left in his room. He expects to leave as soon as the rest of the outfit is supplied.

Mr. Beddow: "What is the formula for water?"
Halstead: "HIJKLMNO."
Mr. Beddow: "What?"
Halstead: "You said it was H to O (H_2O)."

R. Dempsey: "I always make it a practice to say just what I think."
D. Osterlin: "Fine, we'll have a nice quiet evening."

"Flunked in Physics, failed in Math,"
I heard him softly hiss,
"I'd like to find the guy who said,
'Ignorance is bliss.'"

J. Vaughn: "I dreampt I went to Heaven last night."
Wendall Miller: "What woke you up—the heat?"

Geo. Wagner: "I have an idea."
McNulty: "Ah, aged in wood."

EXPLAINED

"Oh, what a strange-looking cow!" exclaimed a sweet young thing from Detroit. "But why hasn't it any horns?"

"Well, you see," explained the farmer, "some cows is born without horns and never has any, and others shed theirs, and some we de-horn, and some breeds ain't supposed to have horns at all. There's lots of reasons why some cows ain't got horns, but the big reason why THAT cow ain't got horns is because she ain't a cow—she's a horse."

Stan. Hoisington: "No. But I would like to be able to get by with some of the stories I hand out to Mr. Warren."

Miss Green: "Why didn't you speak louder?"

Laverne Pfister: "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

Louise Brown, budding young Sociologist, has evolved the following logic:

Marriage is an institution.
Also Marriage is Love.
But Love is blind.
Therefore Marriage is an institution for the blind.

D. Frye: "Father, what is an equinox?"

Father: "Why, er—it—ahem! Why do you ask me? Don't you know anything about mythology at all? An equinox was a fabled animal, half horse, half cow. Its name is derived from the words 'equine' and 'ox.' It does seem as if these public schools don't teach children anything nowadays."

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

"Mr. Chairman," complained the speaker, stopping in his address, "I have been on my feet nearly ten minutes, but there is so much ribaldry and interruption, I can hardly hear myself speak."

"Cheer up, guv'nor," came a voice from the rear, "you ain't missin' much."

Helen Prange: "Al, there's something fishy about you."

Al Merrill: "Sure, I've got a herring-bone suit on."

Mr. Ruesink: "There's not another boy in this town as clever as my Charles."

Mr. Reed: "Go on, how's that?"

Mr. Ruesink: "Well, look at those two chairs. Charles made them all out of his own head, and he has enough wood left to make an armchair."

Elsie: "Did you see in the paper how some people were poisoned through eating chocolates?"

Stewie: "I fancy I did, but what about it?"

Elsie: "Nothing, except that I was thinking—er—how very safe we are!"

Miss Patch: "What made you oversleep this morning?"

Geo. Davis: "There are eight in the house, but the alarm was only set for seven."

No, my boy, we can't all be Lindberghs—just think what a mess the telephone directory would be!

"Where has Owen gone?"

"Well, if the ice is as strong as he thinks it is, he has gone skating—if not, he has gone swimming."

Al. Merrill (to traffic officer): "See here, officer, that light (stop) was green."

Cop: "Go on man, all you saw was your own reflection."

Miss Eggstaff: "Tommy, you've not done a stroke of work this morning and I've told you again and again that "the devil finds work for idle hands to do."

Tom Hoover: "Yes mom."

Miss Eggstaff: "Now take your copy book and write that 20 times."

Mr. Tripp: "Is it true that lightning never strikes twice in the same place?"

L. Pfister: "Yes sir."

Mr. Tripp: "Why?"

L. Pfister: "Because the place is never the same after it strikes the first time."

Marjorie Francoeur (hopeful of Lee): "Mother, do you think matches are made in heaven?"

It didn't show the dirt a bit
But oh how it showed Mary.—Ex.

Miss Patch (to Lynn Putman): "Why don't you ever wash. I can see what you had for dinner. You had eggs this noon."

Puttie: "No, ma'm, that was mustard off the hot dog I had yesterday noon."

WHAT MY DOG THINKS

Say, I wonder if those "guys" are ever going to learn to shoot a gun. I've chased that rabbit past them three times and the shot has never come near him.

I believe the second time I chased him past that series of shots that ended with a bombardment was closer to me than the rabbit, although I was two rods behind him.

Oh, maybe if I chase him past them a few more times he might accidentally get in the way of some of the stray shot they are blasting away.

I think the next time I bring him around I'll stay a little farther back, because the last charge of shot was coming too close for comfort, and I will bark and howl a little louder before I get near them so that they can get ready for the big killing. Still I've given them three chances to kill him so I guess I'll chase him the other way into the tall grass and kill him myself. A little warm blood will do me good on such a cold day as this.

V. Gobba: "I've taken three lessons in Latin from a correspondence school."

E. Clement: "So? Could you carry on a conversation with a Latin person?"

V. Gobba: "Oh, no, but I could talk to anybody else who had three lessons."

L. Pfister's Father: "What's the dog howling about?"

L. Pfister: "I just cut his tail off as you instructed me to ."

L. Pfister's Father: "He howled the same way yesterday."

L. Pfister: "I know but I'm cutting off little pieces at a time so it won't hurt so much."

If a man tries to beat his wife that isn't news, but if he succeeds, it's another story.

Alice: "Why is Mayme so angry?"
Prue: "She had to walk back from a hiking trip."

"Forty years ago today, Arnold," said the old lady, "you did me the high honor of asking me to be your wife."

"Really," murmured the professor absent-mindedly, "and did you do as I wished or not?"

Lucile Miller: "Yeh, we had a fight tonight. He said he'd promised his mother to give up all his bad habits after New Year's."
Mary Jones: "I don't see anything wrong with that."
Lucile: "But then he said, 'That lets you out'."

Farmer (Virgil Bales): "What's th' idea in yo' refusin' a drink o' my cider?"
Tramp (Gerald Downer): "Well, sir, I have a strong aversion to anything that works hard!"

DER TAG

"November 11, 1918!" ejaculated a plutocrat. "I guess the world will never forget that day!"

"I'll say they won't," agreed his friend gloomily. "It was just three days after that that the Government cancelled our order for raincoats."

WORDS AND MUSIC

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?" asked Her.
"I'll say you are!" replied Him, with enthusiasm.
"Yes," countered Her, "but am I?"

Wilma Dibble: "Where did you get that blue ribbon you are wearing?"
Frank Carroll: "I was at a dog show and a lady pinned it on me."

Isabel Sherman: "The horn on this car is broken."
Julia Ruesink: "No it's not, it's just indifferent."
Isabel S.: "What do you mean, indifferent?"
Julia R.: "Well, it doesn't give a hoot!"

Glen Mull went into a telephone booth and dropped a nickle into the slot.
Central: "Number, please?"
Glen: "Number, Heck, I want my chewing gum."

Elsie: "But I thought this place was always crowded."
Stuart McPhail: "It usually is between seven and eight, but I believe in coming late to avoid the rush that comes early to avoid the rush."

Florence White: "You should have heard what all she told me—and she hardly knows me at all."
Grindle Stange: "But just think, now, if she had known you!"

Marian Jameson on making her appearance for the first time in a large hotel spied one of the bell boys.

Marion (running up to bell boy): "My dear boy, where did you pick up that ducky gold braiding?"

Joseph Smith: "Did you hear about Jack stepping in front of a train?"
William Mull: "Was he hurt?"
Joseph S.: "No, the train was backing up."

Tom Hoover: "I'm sorry you're glad I'm not mad at you!"
Helen Warner: "And I'm glad you're sorry I'm glad!"

Porter: "Does you-all wish to sleep head fust or feet fust?"
Marge Francoeur: "That's very sweet of you, but I'd prefer to take all my sleep at once."

Miss Hutchins: "The drawings of these poplar trees are poor. They look as though they were staggering home."
Wilma Allabach: "Yes, I know. Those are collegiate trees, and think that they have to be that way to be poplar."

Dick Camburn (excitedly to cafe cashier): "Have you seen a fellow eating in here with one arm?"
Cafe Cashier: "Yes, but he has a knife in the other."

Billy Flynn's Generous Uncle: "Have you got a dime bank, Billy, my boy?"
Wise Billy: "Nope, but I got a bill fold."

Jim Shierson: "How did you make all your money?"
George Wagner: "I formed a partnership with a rich man."
Jim S.: "How did you do it?"
George S.: "He had the money and I had the experience."
Jim: "And was it a successful business for you?"
George: "Immensely so. When we dissolved a year later, I had the money and he had the experience."

ON THE DOT

"I want a hat, but it must be in the latest style," announced Mrs. Van De Hoofus, as she entered the millinery shop.

"Kindly take a chair, madame, and wait a moment," said the clerk. "You are in the nick of time. The fashion is just changing."

Down at Camp Taylor in 1927, a Negro outfit was lining up before the clerk for preliminary paper work.

"Name and address," demanded the clerk of one dusky recruit.
"Huh?"
"What is your name and address?"
"You ought to know," said Rastus, "Yo' sent fo' me."

"Why do you throw the fish back in?"
"It's the only fish in the pond and I want to try my luck again tomorrow."

The supervisor of a western railroad received the following note from one of his track foremen:

"I am sending in the accident report on Casey's foot when he struck it with the spike maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' you want mine or do you want Casey's?"

Prof. Tripp in Physics: "I will lecture today on liars. How many have read the twenty-fifth chapter?"

Nearly all raised their hands.

Tripp: "That's fine. You're just the group to whom I wish to speak. There is no twenty-fifth chapter."

"Johnnie, I'm afraid I'll not see you in heaven," said John Jasper's father to his errant son.

"Why, what have you been doing now, pop?"

The chiropodist doesn't work his way up. He starts at the foot and stays there.

Helen Warner: "Why do they speak of boxing rings when the things have four corners?"

John Vaughan: "Silly, who ever heard of boxing matches being on the square?"

"First it blew and then it snew,
Then it friz and then it thew,
Then there came a shower of rain,
Then it friz and thew again."—Ex.

Employer: "Are you the vigorous and dynamic accountant-executive with power, punch and personality, who advertised for a job?"

Applicant: "Yes, and are you the far-sighted president of the huge and growing concern who advertised a vacancy?"

Boring Young Man to Pretty Girl: "You know, I'm funny like that—I always throw myself into any job I undertake."

Pretty Girl, sweetly: "How splendid. Why don't you dig a well?"

TOO SOON TO TELL

Charlie had been playing truant from school and had s nt a long, beautiful day in fishing. On his way back he met one of his young mates, who accosted him with the usual question, "Catch anything?"

Charlie, in all the consciousness of guilt, quickly responded, "Ain't been home yet!"

Lynn Halstead: "You must be careful about politeness at the movies nowadays."

Helen Slayton: "Why, what now?"

Lynn H.: "Last night I stood up to let a woman pass me, and she slipped into my seat."

The man who once most wisely said:
"Be sure you're right, then go ahead,"
Might well have added this, to-wit:
"Be sure you're wrong before you quit."

Mr. Tripp (to Marguerite Peck): "What is the commonest conductor of electricity?"

Marguerite P.: "Why-er-er-"

Mr. Tripp: "Correct."

Willie: "Why do old maids wear cotton gloves?"

Billy: "Because they have no kids."

"Mother," said the small boy, "Do they have power plants in heaven?"

"No, dear," replied mother, "It requires engineers to build power plants."

First Colored Lady: "Is your husband in town?"

Second Colored Lady: "Well, yes and no. He's in town, but he's not in circulation. He's been in jail for de last month."

Old Gentleman (seeing the small colored boy was having some trouble in getting away with the large melon he was trying to eat: "Too much melon, isn't it, Rastus?"

Small Colored Boy: "No, suh, boss, not enough niggah."

Chemist (to motorist who had been carried into his shop after an accident): "Yes, sir, you had rather a bad smash, but I managed to bring you to."

Motorist: "I don't remember. Do you mind bringing me two more?"

LUNCHEONETTE

S. Blouch (at soda counter): "Bring me ten ham sandwiches."

"Yes, sir. Anything else, sir?"

Sherman: "Yes—two pieces of bread to put them between."

THE QUALITY OF MERCY

"Did you kill the turkey gobbler for dinner tomorrow?" asked friend wife.

"No," the tender-hearted husband answered. "I went out there, but I thought it would be better if the poor fellow got a good night's rest first, because he's got such a hard day before him."

Mrs. Gillies: "Didn't I hear the clock strike two last night just as you came home?"

Mildred Gillies: "Yes, mother, it started to strike ten, but I stopped it so it wouldn't wake you up."

Mr. Hubbard: "You have a ritzy voice, haven't you?"

McPhail: "What dya mean?"

Mr. Hubbard: "Well off."

Frye: "Have you ever heard that joke about the traveling salesman and the country girl?"

Long: "Sure."

Frye: "Well, will you tell it to me?"

Mr. Luse: "Haven't you found any interest in this course yet?"

Ruth Tyler: "O, yes! I got 4 per cent interest for that last problem."

Question: "What is inhibition?"

Answer: "Inhibition is a place where nobody lives—for example a desert.'"

Miss Green: "Where was the first battle of the Revolution fought?"

Bill Gaddy: "On page twenty-eight."

HEARD ABOUT CLASSES

"A circle is a round straight line with a hole in the middle."

"Caesar was a very great soldier who wrote a book for beginners in Latin."

"Chaucer was the father of English pottery."

"The first conscientious Congress met in Philadelphia."

"The Constitution was established to ensure domestic hostility."

"The Constitution is that part of the book at the end which nobody reads."

"Emphasis is putting more distress on one word than another."

"The stomach is a small pear-shaped bone situated in the body."

"What was the meditation act?"

Question: "How many sets of teeth does one have in a lifetime?"

Answer: "Three—baby teeth, permanent teeth, and false teeth."

POINTS OF ADVICE TO GIRLS

Keep away from track men, they are usually fast.

Never make dates with biological students; they enjoy cutting up too much.

The tennis man is harmless but he enjoys a racket.

Watch out for baseball men, they hit and run.

Be careful of members of the Dramatic club; they usually have several good lines.

Don't play cards with a civil engineer; he's usually a bridge specialist.

Always let a band member talk about himself; he enjoys tooting his own horn.

Mr. Beddow: "Dick, why don't you answer the question?"

Camburn: "I did shake my head that I couldn't answer it."

Mr. Beddow: "You must not have shaken it very hard. I didn't even hear it rattle."

Miss Marshall: "Please conjugate the word 'hic' in Latin."

Student: "Hic—Haec—Hoc—Hujus—Hujus—Hujus—Honk—Honk—Honk—" (pause).

Miss Marshall: "Well, now the road is clear, you may proceed."

Frosh: "I'd like a pencil."
Skinny: "Hard or soft?"
Frosh: "Soft. It's for writing a love letter."

Flapper to her clothes: "I'm going down town now. If you want to come along just hang on."

B. Gaddy: "My bed is too short."
His Grandmother: "Well, don't sleep so long."

Mr. Tripp: "Define the three properties of light."
Blouch: "That window was once transparent; it is now translucent; and if they don't wash it pretty soon it will be opaque."
We suggest that the student use the dictionary.

Miss Armstrong: "What part of speech is 'unprepared'?"
E. Slayton: "The starter."
Miss Armstrong: "The what?"
E. Slayton: "The starter. When I'm unprepared it starts you scolding."

The emigrant was buying his ticket at the shipping office.
"And what about your trunk?" demanded the clerk.
"For what would I be wantin' a trunk?" asked the bewildered emigrant.
"To put your clothes in, of course," replied the clerk.
"What?" cried the scandalized emigrant, "and me go naked?"

A story is told of a young lady who went to a boarding school. On the farm she was always known as "Jessie," but about the third letter home she signed herself "Jessica." Brother Tom replied to her letter:

"Dear Jessica: Daddica and momica have gone to visit Aunt Lizzica. Uncle Samica is talking of buying a new machinica, but doesn't know whether to buy a Fordica or a Chevica. The old cowica had a calfica. I was going to call it Nellica, but changed it to Jimmica, because it was a bullica. Your loving brother, Tomica."

R. Bachman: "How does your nose feel?"
Lucille Miller: "Shut up!"
Ralph: "So does mine, it must be the weather."

Frosh: "I want to ask a question about a tragedy."
Eng. Prof.: "Well?"
Frosh: "What's my mark."

J. Jasper: "When does a rooster become a bandman?"
Frosh: "When he gets his corn-et."

Mr. Hall: "Got your drawing all inked?"
Willnow: "Yeah, and the rest of the paper, too."
